

As a soloist or collaborator, Daniel Lockert is equally versatile on the piano, organ and harpsichord. In his role as pianist-collaborator, his wide ranging career has taken him around the globe, playing throughout the USA, Europe, Japan, Australia and New Zealand. In his role as coach and teacher, Daniel has been on the staffs and faculties of the Juilliard School, the San Francisco Opera, Opera San Jose, the San Francisco Conservatory of Music, Chapman University, Cal State East Bay, and the Aspen Music Festival. This summer he was accompanist for the chorus at the Mendocino Music Festival, conducted by his wife, Jenny Matteucci. He currently is professor of Collaborative Piano at Notre Dame de Namur University in Belmont, CA as well as Staff Accompanist at Mills College, Oakland, CA. He also is organist-choirmaster at Christ Episcopal Church In Sausalito